Where we are ..

People can make a good idea of the placement of Cassino by looking at the map (Google Earth).

It is half way between Rome and Naples
The history of Cassino is strictly intertwined with the history of the Abbey of Montecassino.

It was founded from St. Benedict and was very important in the Middle Ages for the work of its monks. It was destroyed several times, the last one during the second world war (five war cemeteries near the town testify how hard was that battle)
Since 1979 Cassino has an University which has grown with time (today it has 14000 students) and has five faculties among which Engineering, Humanities, Economics.

For people interested in learning more the following web site are reported:
